

Half Hollow Park

The 31-acre Half Hollow Park was deeded to the Town in 2005 as a condition of rezoning for The Greens at Half Hollow. It was formerly a component of the New York State-owned Long Island Developmental Center property. Unlike most dedications that accompany requests for land use changes, this property was planned for active recreational use. The site has been developed primarily as a soccer park with ten fields, two of which are mini practice fields. A new playground and two bocce courts were installed in 2009, offering plenty of activities for a variety of ages. The one-mile trail is a simple open perimeter pathway that follows the park's boundary. The site lies within the West Hills-Melville Special Groundwater Protection Area, and helps recharge the underlying aquifer, the source of Long Island's drinking water.
